DEPARTMENT OF HIGHER EDUCATION
Coordination-Administration
Section 3.005

Budget Book Page 20

CBHE has the leadership responsibility for higher education in Missouri. The CBHE and the Department of Higher Education conduct studies of population enrollment trends; develop arrangements for more effective and more economical specialization among institutions and programs; encourage more effective mutual support and coordination among institutions; identify higher education and labor force needs; and design a coordinated plan for higher education in the state and in its sub-regions. In doing so the CBHE focuses on participation, completion and affordability.

Funding Based on Improved Outcomes
Section 3.155

Budget Book Page 380

The amount of increased funding each institution receives is dependent upon how many of their five performance measure targeted outcomes were met. All measures were evaluated based on a three-year rolling average with success being defined for each institution individually as improvement over that institution's performance from the previous year, or, when applicable, maintenance of a high level of performance in relation to a previously established and externally validated threshold.

State Technical College of Missouri
Section 3.205

Budget Book Page 418

This section provides funding to State Technical College of Missouri, created by Senate Bill 101 (1995). State Technical College of Missouri was established in the fall of 1961 from funding from the National Defense Education Act as a postsecondary, residential vocational/technical school and operated by the Linn R-II School District. On June 7, 1965, as a result of the 1963 Vocational Act, the State Board of Education officially designated the College as an area vocational technical school. Linn Technical College became a state institution on July 5, 1995, and was renamed to Linn State Technical College, it was later renamed (2014) State Technical College of Missouri.

This section provides funding for Harris-Stowe State College. The Board of Education of the St. Louis Public Schools merged two teacher education institutions in 1954 (Harris Teachers College and Stowe Teachers College) and the name remained Harris Teachers College. Later the Board dropped Teachers and added Stowe, so the name was Harris-Stowe College. Each school began as normal schools but Harris, was for white students and opened as early as 1857 and Stowe, opened in 1890 to educate future black teachers. In 1920, Harris Teachers College became a four-year undergraduate institution and in 1924 Stowe became a four-year institution.

University Of Missouri System
Section 3.255

Budget Book Page 489

This section provides funding for the University of Missouri System. The Missouri State General Assembly passed the Geyer Act in February of 1839 that ordered, in part, "A University is hereby instituted in this State". At this time, the University of Missouri was the only institution of higher learning west of the Mississippi River. The Missouri River was then the State's main artery of commerce and transportation and it was determined the University should be located in one of several central Missouri counties for greatest ease of access. Boone County was able to amass the greatest money and land "subscriptions" (just over $118,000) to provide for construction and support of the University. The University grew over the following decades to hold a place of regional and national distinction. In the early 1960's, an effort was made to more fully address the higher education needs in Kansas City and St. Louis. The University of Missouri implemented its plan to expand to a four-campus system at Columbia, Rolla, St. Louis and Kansas City in 1963.

In FY15, the university surpassed its current tax refund offset appropriation threshold used to cover unpaid debts owed to the institution by state taxpayers. The possible shortfall in the FY16 appropriation due to FY15 obligations being paid from it, significant fluctuations in the amount of unpaid debts owed to this institution, and the lack of designation of an estimated appropriation for these purposes necessitates the need for additional appropriation authority to continue reimbursements to the institution.
